Does it matter who ‘owns’ our universities?

Andrew McGettigan on the corporatisation of higher education and why it matters

In this issue

A strategy to beat the government | Defending equality against austerity | What every casualised worker needs to know | The use and misuse of surveys
Editorial 3
Jane Hardy

Does it matter who owns our universities? 4
Andrew McGettigan

Privatising Further Education: the thin end of the wedge 6
Alan Barker

A government for the taking: a strategy to win 7
Sean Vernell

Defending pay and conditions: the experience of Chesterfield College 9
James Eaden

Miliband and immigration: the wrong kind of apology 10
Nick Clark

Fighting for the rights of casualised workers 11
Dave Renton, Malcom Povey & Sean Wallis

What every casualised worker needs to know 13
Dave Renton

Defending Equality Against Austerity 14
Veronica Killen & Laura Miles

The use and misuse of surveys in UCU policy making 16
Rachel Cohen

Inside Egypt’s universities: An interview with Hala Kamal 17
Anne Alexander

Who educates the educators? Why teacher education needs theory as well as practice 18
Jon Berry